Historic Preservation Officer, Karen Stewart
City of Everett
3002 Wetmore St
Everett, Washington 98201

Dear Ms. Stewart:

It gives me great pleasure to inform you that the following property;

Longfellow Elementary School
at 3715 Oakes Ave., Everett has been listed in the National Register of Historic Places, where it joins other properties which contribute to the rich cultural heritage of Washington State. Longfellow Elementary School is historically significant for its direct contribution to the broad patterns of educational development in the city. The school represents a rare surviving example of an educational facility from Everett's boom time in the early years of the 20th century.

Completed in 1911, Longfellow School is also significant as a building that embodies the distinctive characteristics of its type (an early twentieth-century school), and represents the work of local master architect, Wesley W. Hastings.

The National Register records the tangible reminders of the history of the United States and is the official repository for documentation of cultural resources worthy of preservation.

I am pleased to provide you with this honor, and to commend your support and stewardship of this significant property. Please do not hesitate to contact Michael Houser, our National Register Coordinator at (360) 890-2634 if you have any questions or comments regarding the National Register listing.

Sincerely,

Allyson Brooks, Ph.D.
State Historic Preservation Officer
